

Sedona Adventures – March 2014

By Sue and Aaron Singleton

Bell Rock, one of the most well-known formations and vortices in Sedona, AZ.

We enjoyed a wonderful trip to Sedona and the Grand Canyon in Arizona, and are happy to share a few videos of some of our experiences. As some of you know, Sedona and its beautiful “red rocks” are an amazing energy experience, as the multiple vortices (plural for vortex) attract people from all over the world.

For us in particular, Sedona reminds us of the several trips we led to Egypt, which also is a land of vortices. In Egypt, the vortices are along the Nile River, out in the desert, inside and near sacred sites and temples. In Sedona, they are part of the majestic landscape, and easy to experience during nature walks.

During one of our excursions, we re-visited an energy portal that we had previously discovered in Sedona, located between Bell Rock and Courthouse Butte vortices, accompanied by our friends Reanaleia, Barbara and Robert. This magical portal immediately connected us to the White Desert in Egypt, where giant white calcite crystal formations dominate the landscape. Not far from this portal, we discovered another portal which connected us with another of our favorite areas in Egypt: Saqqara, the site of the Step Pyramid, one of the earliest pyramids discovered in Egypt thus far. The overwhelming feeling of connectedness with all of God’s creations was very moving. On that same walk, we opened an energy portal from Sedona to Kyoto, Japan, to help send energy support to the Japanese people for all they are going through: the continued radiation leaks and increased earthquake activity over the past 6 weeks.

Video 1: Speaking in Tongues: Messages from the Ancients

The five of us (Sue, Aaron, and friends Reanaleia, Barbara and Robert) hiked to a little-known area of sacred space and very special energies, where we recorded an important message from the Ancients! Although Sue frequently “speaks in tongues”—a phenomena practiced in many cultures for thousands of years— it was our friend Reanaleia (a Sound Healer) who spoke in tongues, while Sue served as interpreter! We get wonderful shivers of recognition even when we listen to it on video. Enjoy!

Video 2: River Rock Stone Stacks & Meditative Sounds

The two of us hiked along Oak Creek, and the back side of the amazing Cathedral Rock. In an area called Buddha’s Beach, many have left river rock stone stacks, as monuments to the sacred area. In this video, we focused on just one stack, but we know that you will appreciate the healing, meditative sounds of rushing water, as well as the wonderful surprise toward the end of the video!

Finally, we are excited to announce that several retail stores in Sedona are now selling some of our Energy of Life[®] (EOL[™]) Tools for Transformation and Healing. Remember, if you are a retailer, or have friends who are, we welcome new wholesale inquiries.
